

Week of May 17

This week, I have books with rhyming dust bunnies and a rhyming book about a cookie. There are also new links and activities.

Enjoy!

Books for this week:

Rhyming Dust Bunnies by Jan Thomas

What rhymes do the dust bunnies say? Can you think of more rhymes?

Here are some suggested activities to do with your child this week. Enjoy!

1. Play a name rhyming game. Say your child's name and make silly rhymes with it. You can do this with other family members too. (Sally/bally, rally, tally). You can make up words too.
2. Play trash the letter. Write letters on small pieces of paper or on post it notes (one letter per page). Spread out the letters. Tell your child a letter or say the letter sound. Have your child find that letter, crumple the paper and then toss it into a basket or trash can.
3. Make a cake using play dough. Then use popsicle sticks or other similar materials for candles. Have your child count the candles on the cake. Then have your child add or take off candles and count again.
4. Play soccer! Use laundry baskets or other large containers as a goal. Have your child kick a ball and try to get it in the "goal."
5. Cut up straws or use beads and string them on a piper cleaner or yarn.
